

ABSTRACT

An apparatus and method for making changes to an active schedule being processed by a host controller is disclosed. The apparatus and method includes examining a transaction descriptor, determining a current state for a transaction based on the transaction descriptor, and preventing the transaction from starting if the current state indicates the transaction has not already started.